Veritas Information Governance

Navigate complex data regulations effortlessly and protect your business against costly non-compliance and security threats.

Companies must manage their data carefully and follow global rules in today's fast-paced digital world. Veritas Information Governance will help you manage these challenges by automating compliance, protecting data, and encouraging intelligent risk management. This turns data handling from a must-do into a strategic benefit.

Dealing with a lot of data and keeping it safe is hard, especially with all the new information created daily. Not following data rules like GDPR or HIPAA can cost you around $15 million, compared to the $5.5 million it takes just to comply.[1]

Data is often messy and scattered, which can cause mistakes and waste time. Data grows by 40% annually[2] and is hard to keep track of every year. This makes it challenging to follow rules that require you to be transparent and responsible with data.

Not managing your data well can lead to security issues and lost customer trust, and can hurt your reputation. But, with good data management policies, you can follow the rules better, lower the risk of data problems, and manage your data more efficiently.

The Importance of Information Governance and Tech

Good data management means managing data from start to finish and ensuring it is correct and protected. Using technology to help with compliance allows you to better monitor and adhere to rules, minimizing risks and keeping data secure and accurate.

Veritas Information Governance: Making Data Rules Easier and Keeping Data Safe

Veritas helps balance following rules with using data to innovate. It streamlines managing data to meet strict standards and helps find valuable insights. It automates finding and sorting data, simplifies following rules, boosts security, and helps make better decisions.
